From Fr. Joe

In the segment of the Gospel of Mark that we read on this 4th Sunday in Ordinary Time (Mark 1:21-28), we hear that Jesus astonished the people as he taught in the synagogue – “for he taught them as one having authority”. He also expelled an unclean spirit from one of the men in the synagogue. The unclean spirit had correctly recognized who Jesus was: “I know who you are – the Holy One of God!”. Jesus rebuked him and said, ‘Quiet! Come out of him!’” The unclean spirit left the man, and this amazed the people even more.

At least in the first chapter of his gospel, besides some short statements like the above rebuke of the unclean spirit, and those from last Sunday – “This is the time of fulfillment. The kingdom of God is at hand. Repent, and believe in the gospel.” (Mark 1:15), “Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men.” (Mark 1:17) – Mark doesn’t give us many details of what Jesus taught, but whatever it was, Jesus did it with authority – and it was effective. Maybe the key to this authoritative way of teaching is that for Jesus it wasn’t just words spoken, what he spoke and what he did were one in the same.

Also, have you ever wondered why Jesus didn’t want the unclean spirit to let it be known who he was? After all, isn’t publicity good? Wouldn’t it have made Jesus’ ministry easier and more effective if more people were aware of who he was right from the beginning, and he could get on with spreading the Good News?

Maybe Jesus silenced the unclean spirit because to really get to know him – to know the message of the Good News that he came to bring to the world – the people (which includes you and me) would have to follow him. Although the wonders Jesus worked (healings, exorcisms, multiplication of loaves and fishes, etc.) were a part of Jesus’ Good News, people then as well as now, won’t really get to know Jesus just by being impressed by his miracles. And as truthful as the utterances of the unclean spirits were, those one-liners aren’t sufficient either. To get to know him we must follow him everywhere which, while ultimately bringing us to the Resurrection, also includes his passion and death. It is through all of these aspects of him that we get to know who Jesus is and what he is about. It is through the entire Paschal Mystery (the total event of Christ’s Passion, death, Resurrection, Ascension, and sending of the Holy Spirit) that we find what Jesus came to bring us – eternal life!

Sometimes it can be easy to dismiss or think of the Gospel as irrelevant in our time when we hear terms like “unclean spirits”. That can seem like superstition to us today, as we explain away such things as a form of mental illness or a physical condition such as epilepsy. Thinking of evil in terms of unclean spirits, demons and devils helps to keep it at a distance. While those things make for intriguing entertainment, they just don’t seem a real part of our modern enlightened life. Whether or not we think we can explain past events in light of our current understanding of how the world works, the point is that Jesus can, and does, touch our lives and has the power to expel whatever unclean spirits are hanging around and have taken possession of us – like prejudice, discrimination, jealousy, envy, violence, selfishness, etc. However we try to explain away these unclean spirits, wouldn’t it be wonderful to be free of them?

A first step toward that end is recognizing what unclean spirits have crept into our lives. The following is an example of someone who had the courage to do just that, and the faith to ask for God’s assistance:

On January 23, 1996, in Topeka, KS, the Rev. Joe Wright, pastor of Central Christian Church in Wichita, KS was the guest chaplain for the opening session of the Kansas House. Everyone expected the usual generalities, but this is what they heard:

"Heavenly Father, we come before you today to ask your forgiveness and to seek your direction and guidance. We know Your Word says, 'Woe to those who call evil good,' but that is exactly what we have done. We have lost our spiritual equilibrium and reversed our values.

We have endorsed perversion and called it an alternative lifestyle.

We have exploited the poor and called it the lottery. We have neglected the needy and called it self-preservation.

We have rewarded laziness and called it welfare.

We have killed our unborn and called it pro-choice.

We have shot abortionists and called it justifiable.

We have neglected to discipline our children and called it building self-esteem.

We have abused power and called it political savvy.

We have coveted our neighbor's possessions and called it ambition.

We have polluted the air with profanity and pornography and called it freedom of expression.

We have ridiculed the time-honored values of our forefathers and called it enlightenment.

Search us, Oh, God, and know our hearts today; cleanse us from every sin and set us free."

As we get to know Jesus more – his life and Paschal Mystery – through the Gospel of Mark during this liturgical year, let us recognize and confront the unclean spirits in and among us and turn to the only one who has the power to set us free: our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Have a blessed week,

Fr. Joe

Next installment of "A Journey through the Mass"

We now come to the part of the Mass that is the real sign of unity — Holy Communion. (Communion is distributed by ordinary ministers — bishops, priests, deacons — if present and there are enough of them. For simplicity, what follows will describe the use of extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion — laity trained and entrusted with this privilege — which is the case with most parishes in our diocese.)

Following the Invitation to Communion (“Behold the Lamb of God ...” “Lord, I am not worthy ...”), the priest, and any concelebrants, receive Communion. “After the Priest has concluded his own Communion, he distributes Communion to the extraordinary ministers, and then hands the sacred vessels to them for distribution of Holy Communion to the people.” (GIRM 38) “It is not permitted for the faithful to take the consecrated Bread or the sacred chalice by themselves. The norm established for the Dioceses of the United States of America is that Holy Communion is to be received standing, unless an individual member of the faithful wishes to receive Communion while kneeling. When receiving Holy Communion, the communicant bows his or her head before the Sacrament as a gesture of reverence and receives the Body of the Lord from the minister. The consecrated host may be received either on the tongue or in the hand, at the discretion of each communicant. When Holy Communion is received under both kinds, the sign of reverence is also made before receiving the Precious Blood.” (GIRM 160) When receiving Communion, the minister says “The Body of Christ” or “The Blood of Christ”, depending on what form they are distributing, and the communicant replies “Amen” (GIRM 161 & 286 respectively) [“Thank you”, “I believe” or anything other than “Amen” are not proper responses.]

Regarding receiving the Body of Christ and/or the Precious Blood, “Holy Communion has a fuller form as a sign when it takes place under both kinds. For in this form the sign of the Eucharistic banquet is more clearly evident and clearer expression is given to the divine will by which the new and eternal Covenant is ratified in the Blood of the Lord,” (GIRM 281) That being said, “the Catholic faith teaches that Christ, whole and entire, and the true Sacrament, is received even under one species, and hence that as regards the resulting fruits, those who receive under only one species are not deprived of any grace that is necessary for salvation.” (GIRM 282) “It is the choice of the communicant, not the minister, to receive from the chalice.” (GIRM 41)

Because Holy Communion is the sign of unity, those who are not in full communion with the Catholic Church, either by profession of faith or by Catholics who have separated themselves by their actions (i.e. being in serious sin; examples: neglecting Sunday Mass; being in an irregular marriage; having an abortion or participating in one), should not receive Holy Communion at Mass, until having repented of their sin(s) in the sacrament of Reconciliation. To ignore these obvious signs of division or separation would make Holy Communion a false sign of unity — something we should never do. In the meantime, we hope and pray for the day when all are living in full communion with the Catholic Church, so that we can share the ultimate sign of unity — Holy Communion.

Before moving on, a few clarifications should be made in regard to some signs of reverence for the Body and Blood of Christ. One is that of chewing gum during Mass—that just should not be happening. It might help to think of it this way: if you were getting married, hopefully with all of the dignity it deserves, would you want the members of your wedding party standing up there chomping away? Or, if you were granted a personal audience with the Pope or the President of the United States, would you greet them chewing away on a piece of gum? (Hopefully the answer would be: “No, of course not. That would be disrespectful.”) Then why would you think of being in the presence of Jesus Christ mindlessly chewing away? “But, I like chewing gum; and, it’s just a nervous habit.” So, start a new habit, stop chewing gum in church; and be a model of appropriate behavior.

Another clarification regards receiving Holy Communion in the hand. As noted earlier, the “consecrated host may be received either on the tongue or in the hand, at the discretion of each communicant.” (GIRM 160) If choosing to receive the Body of Christ in the hand, the communicant should place their hands, one on top of the other as a throne, “as befits one who is about to receive the King. Then receive him, taking care that nothing is lost.” (GIRM 41) The communicant is not to pick the consecrated host out of the hand of the Eucharistic minister presenting the Body of Christ. And, if you receive the Body of Christ in the throne made by your hands, doesn’t it seem only sensible that an effort would be made that this throne be clean? (Granted, some people’s hands have work stains that just won’t come off, but others have dirty hands that simply have not been washed.) The point is, we should be properly reverent and prepared to receive the most Blessed Sacrament.
